

On June 2, 2003, I strongly urge the FCC not to allow consolidation of ownership of media. The only way to insure that all viewpoints are heard and broadcast is to have ownership by divergent groups. To allow just a few corporations to control what the news will be is a threat to democracy. Now is the time for the FCC to stand for the people (who actually own the airwaves), not for the corporations who stand to profit.